Photo Manipulation Proposal

For this photo manipulation project, I was to explore an idea that's slightly less realistic; animals and nature taking over the world! I like that this project might lead to some surrealistic imagery, so I want to lean more towards that. I want to take some inspiration from Salvador Dalí and the artist we discussed in class, Remedios Varo. I'm unsure fully how I want to execute this imagery, but I would like to experiment with the two separate ideas of utopia and dystopia. I want the utopian piece to have lots of bright colors, while I want the dystopian piece to appear more dark in terms of color and imagery. The questions I want to explore include, "what would really happen if animals and nature overtook the world, what are the benefits or what would go wrong?" The concept is supposed to be a bit more lighthearted, so I would like the audience to feel a sense of joy when viewing my piece.
